DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's amendment filed April 7, 2004 is acknowledged and has entered. Claim 41 has been amended. Claim 44 has been canceled. Claims 1-43 and 45-91 are pending. All of the amendments and arguments have been thoroughly considered and reviewed but are deemed moot in view of the new grounds of rejections. Any rejections not reiterated in this action have been withdrawn as being obviated by the amendment of the claims.

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Previous Rejections

3. The prior art rejections under 35 USC 102(e) directed to claims 41-47 and 91 are withdrawn in view of the new grounds of rejections.

New Ground(s) of Rejections

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 41 and 46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Adams et al (WO 90/01564, February 1990). Regarding claim 41, Adams et al teach an apparatus comprising a solid support wherein said solid support is a dipstick having attached thereto a capture reagent which binds to a target analyte and wherein said solid support (dipstick) comprises a solid surface which is coated with a non-stick coating material. Adams et al teach that the solid surface material avoids porosity that interferes with the diffusion rate of free nucleic acids (abstract and page 3, lines 4-33).

Regarding claim 46, Adams et al teach the apparatus of claim 41, wherein the capture reagent comprises an oligonucleotide that hybridizes to a polynucleotide which comprises a target analyte (col. 4, lines 12-13). Thus, Adams et al meets the limitations of claims 41 and 46.

6. Claims 41-43, 45-47 and 91 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gustafson et al (US 5,478,527, December 1995). Regarding claims 41-43, 45-47 and 91, Gustafson et al teach an apparatus comprising a solid support wherein said solid support is a dipstick having attached thereto a capture reagent which binds to a target analyte. Gustafson et al teach that the capture agent may be antibody or a nucleotide hybridizing agent (col. 7, lines 5-15) and wherein the capture agent may be attached covalently (col. 7, lines 18-22) or non-covalently (col. 7, lines 64-65) to the solid support. The reference further teaches wherein said solid support (dipstick) comprises a solid surface which is coated with a non-stick coating material, wherein said non-stick material is a silanizing agent, such as polysiloxane and/or silane (col. 9, lines 4-26). Therefore, Gustafson et al meets the limitations of claims 41-43, 45-47 and 91 of the instant invention.

Conclusion

7. Claims 41-43, 45-47 and 91 are not allowed. Claims 1-40 and 48-90 contain allowable subject matter because no prior art was found teaching a method of reducing cross-contamination of assay reagent solutions, wherein a non-stick coating material is coated onto the solid support to reduce cross-contamination of reagent solutions that come in contact with the solid support.
